Contents

Janis Carroll-Lind Chapter 2 'The kid with ADHD who fished up the land of the kiwi' and other stories from exclusion to inclusion: Human rights, disability and education in the post Disability Convention world Paul Gibson, Disability Rights Commissioner, New Zealand Human Rights Commission Chapter 3 Is internal suspension associated with better student outcomes than external suspension? Sheryl Hemphill, Jess Heerde and Barbara McMorris Chapter 4 What results from psychological questionnaires? Tim Corcoran Part Two: Resolving school exclusion contexts Chapter 5 A way forward? Finding room for flexible behaviour management approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student	Foreword Megan Mitchell, National Children's Commissioner, Australia	vi
Part One: Talking about exclusion Chapter 1 The right to education: Advocacy in school exclusion contexts Janis Carroll-Lind Chapter 2 'The kid with ADHD who fished up the land of the kiwi' and other stories from exclusion to inclusion: Human rights, disability and education in the post Disability Convention world Paul Gibson, Disability Rights Commissioner, New Zealand Human Rights Commission Chapter 3 Is internal suspension associated with better student outcomes than external suspension? Sheryl Hemphill, Jess Heerde and Barbara McMorris Chapter 4 What results from psychological questionnaires? Tim Corcoran Part Two: Resolving school exclusion contexts Chapter 5 A way forward? Finding room for flexible behaviour management approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour	Judge Andrew Becroft, Principal Youth Court Judge for Aotearoa New	Zealand:
Chapter 1 The right to education: Advocacy in school exclusion contexts Janis Carroll-Lind Chapter 2 'The kid with ADHD who fished up the land of the kiwi' and other stories from exclusion to inclusion: Human rights, disability and education in the post Disability Convention world Paul Gibson, Disability Rights Commissioner, New Zealand Human Rights Commission Chapter 3 Is internal suspension associated with better student outcomes than external suspension? Sheryl Hemphill, Jess Heerde and Barbara McMorris Chapter 4 What results from psychological questionnaires? Tim Corcoran Part Two: Resolving school exclusion contexts Chapter 5 A way forward? Finding room for flexible behaviour management approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour
Janis Carroll-Lind Chapter 2 'The kid with ADHD who fished up the land of the kiwi' and other stories from exclusion to inclusion: Human rights, disability and education in the post Disability Convention world Paul Gibson, Disability Rights Commissioner, New Zealand Human Rights Commission Chapter 3 Is internal suspension associated with better student outcomes than external suspension? Sheryl Hemphill, Jess Heerde and Barbara McMorris Chapter 4 What results from psychological questionnaires? Tim Corcoran Part Two: Resolving school exclusion contexts Chapter 5 A way forward? Finding room for flexible behaviour management approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour	Part One: Talking about exclusion stories from exclusion to inclusion: Human rights, disability and education in the post Disability Convention world Paul Gibson, Disability Rights Commissioner, New Zealand Human Rights Commission Chapter 3 Is internal suspension associated with better student outcomes than external suspension? Sheryl Hemphill, Jess Heerde and Barbara McMorris Chapter 4 What results from psychological questionnaires? Tim Corcoran Part Two: Resolving school exclusion contexts Chapter 5 A way forward? Finding room for flexible behaviour management approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour		exts 1
than external suspension? Sheryl Hemphill, Jess Heerde and Barbara McMorris Chapter 4 What results from psychological questionnaires? Tim Corcoran Part Two: Resolving school exclusion contexts Chapter 5 A way forward? Finding room for flexible behaviour management approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour	stories from exclusion to inclusion: Human rights, disability and edu in the post Disability Convention world Paul Gibson, Disability Rights Commissioner, New Zealand Human R	acation 3
Tim Corcoran Part Two: Resolving school exclusion contexts Chapter 5 A way forward? Finding room for flexible behaviour management approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour	than external suspension?	omes 47
Chapter 5 A way forward? Finding room for flexible behaviour management approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour		7.
approaches in inflexible school structures Sheryl Hemphill, Sarah Drew, David Broderick, Lynn Gillam and Lyndal Bond Chapter 6 The relationship between the compulsory school experience and youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour	Part Two: Resolving school exclusion contexts youth offending Alison Sutherland Chapter 7 Writing the wrong: Using restorative practices to address student behaviour 13	approaches in inflexible school structures	9:
behaviour 13	youth offending	ce and
	behaviour	student 135

Chapter 8 A stitch in time: Clues to mending the home-school relationship after a crisis event	153
Patty Towl
Chapter 9 The McAuley Champagnat Program: A community response to a local problem Kevin Quin and Katrina Mohammed	174
Chapter 10 Outside in: One school's endeavours to keep disadvantaged young people in school and engaged Margaret Callingham	196
Chapter 11 The Ministry of Education's Behaviour Crisis Response Service: Helping educational facilities to manage crisis situations and keep students engaged in learning Mike Crosby, Grant Malins and Terry Carter	216
Chapter 12 Narrative therapy as a guide for responding to unacceptable actions Donald McMennamin	236
Chapter 13 Conclusions Sheryl Hemphill and Patty Towl	257
About the authors	261
Index	268